

Writing 13 & Under Reserve Champion
Veronica Scavo

The Spirit of the Arabian Horse

The Arabian horse has a spirit, a wild, kind spirit that is so unique, so strong that it can not be impaired.

As he gallops through the pasture, lifting his legs up high, you can see the grace, the spirit that makes this creature so magnificent.

He holds his delicate, dished head up high, with pride and dignity as he gallops through the grass, with vigor in every step.

The fire can be seen in his large, dark eyes as he flares his nostrils, rears up high and paws the air, showing his strength, his beauty.

He gallops off into the distance, with power, with pride, tail held high and mane flowing wonderfully.

As he slows to a flowing trot, he whinnies to his herd, who whinney in return. He walks up to them, calmly, elegantly, and nuzzles them with his soft, velvety muzzle.

His large, soft eyes show his affection, his love for his herd, his friends.

He has such great spirit, with fire and courage, yet goodness and grace. He is so unique, so majestic- he is the Arabian horse, and nothing less.